From Kebab to Ćevapčići:
Eating Practices in Ottoman Europe

The purpose of the research group „Ottoman Europe“ is to foster the dialogue between Turkish/Ottoman and South-Eastern European Studies on the one hand and research on European history on the other. While the research group focuses on the Early Modern Period, the Conference's scope extends to include Ottoman and (post-) Ottoman contexts of ways of eating in the 19th and 20th centuries. The study of this subject has seen a considerable boom during the last 20 years and produced many exiting theses. The international Symposium aims to recontextualize, reflect and expand them in the framework of an „Ottoman Europe“.
